

URL could be something like:

votesyesforcvilleschools.org

yesforcvilleschools.org

Note there are going to be some state constitutional amendments on the ballots so we can't just say "vote yes" we have to be specific with the "yes" and "schools" connect.

Webpage:

We don't need a full site, really just a single page.

The whole purpose of this is to say what CCS can't say which is "Vote Yes." They can inform but not explicitly advocate so the "vote yes" part is focus.

I can write some basic copy for the page and then we'd have prominent "learn more" type CTA buttons to direct people to:

[INSERT HEADLINE/TAGLINE HERE]

On November 2, 2026, Charlottesville voters have the long-anticipated opportunity to vote directly for funding to support safe, secure, modern schools.

Voters can approve a 1% sales tax* increase which would create a new source of funding – approximately $12million/year for 20 years – dedicated solely to upgrading aging school infrastructure.

*The tax would not apply to groceries, essential personal hygiene products or prescription medications.

Localities across the state are considering sales tax measures in November as well.

The stunning new Charlottesville Middle School took years of battling to fund. This measure means the rest of our schools won't have to wait that long for the upgrades they deserve.

[MAYBE WE DO A BEFORE AND AFTER OF BUFORD AND CMS? OR A PHOTO OF CHS NOW NEXT TO THE NEW CMS TO SHOW WHAT'S POSSIBLE WITH FUNDING]

The Charlottesville City Schools website includes more details on how the revenue will benefit schools including:

- Bring the new Charlottesville Early Learning Center over the finish line.
- Upgrades to Charlottesville High School where most current classrooms are windowless and lack space for collaboration and many restrooms are in disrepair.
- Cafeteria, kitchen and media center at Jackson-Via.
- Cafeteria and auditorium upgrades at Greenbrier.

Graphics/Messaging:

We probably want to go with CCS colors or close to it? No red. Orange and black is CMS and CHS so that could be an option as people associate with schools

We don't want to talk about a "tax" or "sales tax" at least not as the lead.

Here is a flyer that CCS did that we can pull from/use:

What about (thanks Claude for this inspo): Turn a Penny Into Progress. Vote Yes to Support Safe and Secure Cville Schools

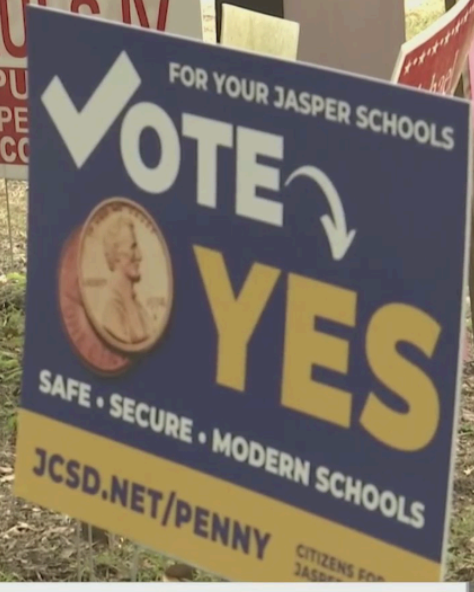

Here are some other ideas from Claude:

The Coffee Comparison: Use signage showing that a year of the sales tax costs the average citizen less than one gourmet coffee latte.

The Receipt Reminder: Create mock shopping receipts showing a $20 purchase. Highlight the tiny 20¢ tax line next to a list of massive school repairs it funds.
